Speaker and Piano

On CBC Wednesday Night — Richard Strauss' unusual setting of Tennyson's "Enoch Arden"

When Richard Strauss made a whirlwind tour of the United States back in 1904, conducting the German Wetzler Orchestra in programs of his own works, he was severely criticized on one occasion for his "inartistic behaviour" in presenting concerts in a drapery store. He replied in typical fashion that the atmosphere in which he gave these concerts was perhaps even more artistic than that in certain concert halls he would not mention, and it was better to earn money honestly than to sit about complaining about people with business sense and ingenuity.

Not that his audience seated among the bolts of poplin and bombazine was asking for its money back. Many of them were shocked but all were intrigued by the stark realism of Enoch Arden, his setting for speaker and piano of Tennyson's long narrative poem and sentimental romance, which he performed constantly during his tour. The music is not continuous, but in a Wagnerian sense forms points of reference to the main characters in the story, expressing different shades of feeling and atmosphere with great charm and subtlety.

Enoch Arden will have its first Canadian performance on CBC Wednesday Night this week by Canadian actor Michael Kane and young Montreal pianist Lawrence Dennis. It will be introduced by Sidney Lamb, associate professor of English at Sir George Williams' University in Montreal.

Strauss was born the year Tennyson wrote Enoch Arden—1864. He set it to music when he was 20, at the beginning of his tone-poem era that outraged the world with its adventurousness. In a letter written just before his first American tour Strauss confessed to his method of composing. "For some time I will have no impulse to compose at all. Then one evening I will be turning the leaves of a volume of poetry; a poem will strike my eyes. I read it through; it agrees with the mood I am in; and at once the appropriate music is instinctively fitted to it. I am in a musical frame of mind and all I want is the right poetic vessel into which to pour my ideas. If good luck throws this in my way a satisfactory song results."

In the case of Enoch Arden he was attracted by the easily read and understood tale of unselfish devotion, its seaside setting, and the wide variety of emotions it conveys. Phillip, the rich miller's son, and Enoch, a poor orphan, are both in love with Annie, but it is Enoch who has the courage to woo and win her. For the next seven years they are very happy with his fisherman's living, their tiny cottage and two children. Then Enoch has an accident that keeps him from his fishing, a sickly child is born to them — his favourite — and their fortunes and hopes dwindle. Finally Enoch grabs the chance to sail on a merchantman bound for China. Annie begs him to stay but he sells his fishing boat to leave her provided for and sails away. Annie gives him a lock of the baby's hair as a keepsake.

Three years go by without a word from Enoch. The baby dies,

Rawhide Gives The Lowdown On Ed McCurdy

(Being a prelude to Project '60's feature on folk singing Dec. 29 and Jan. 3 on radio)

Old Rawhide eased his tobacco plug from one side of his mouth to the other, looked around for a spittoon, cursed the CBC roundly when he didn't find one, and drawled:

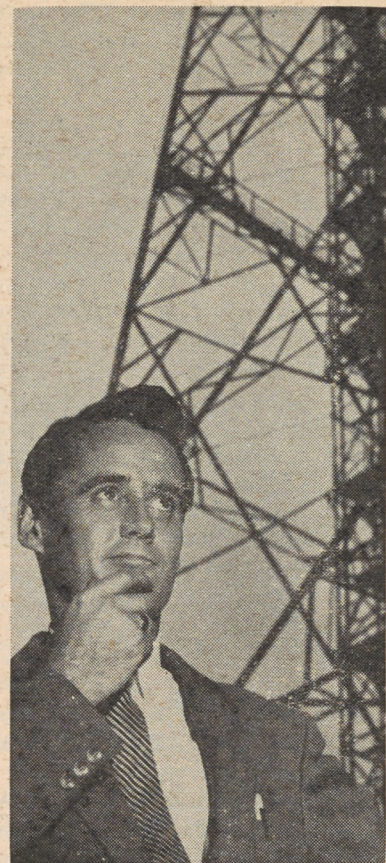

"The lowdown on my old pal Ed McCurdy, eh? We-e-ell, heel heel . . ." he began to chortle and heave with laughter and then, wiping his eyes on the cuff of his plaid shirt, said he was thinking "of something that happened back there when Ed was singing ballads on CBC radio out of Vancouver. It was just when there was all that scandal about Walter Wanger shooting Joan Bennett's agent. Ed wrote a ballad about it, dedicated it to me, and sent along a recording for me to use on my show. Well, my boys know Ed's sense of humor, and they warned me to go real careful, so I took it into the CBC recording room, kept the sound down low and listened to the first verse. Even Kate Aitken would have liked it, and I turned up the sound so a couple of girls standing around there could hear the rest. I hate to tell this on old Ed, but my face turned redder than Sir Cedric Fitz-bumblebee's eyes after a couple of sundowners. That night on my show I said that old Ed had sent along this record and I threatened to play it. He was listening out in Vancouver and he almost died on the spot!"

"Yep," Rawhide said thoughtfully, "that's old Ed. You know what his ambition is in music? To hear Peter Dawson singing They're Changing Guard at Buckingham Palace with a chorus of 4,000 hound dogs in the Grand Canyon! Sounds fantastic, but knowing Ed I wouldn't put it past him."

We gathered from this that Rawhide rather admires McCurdy. He allowed that Ed is his favourite ballad singer. "He puts you through a shock period when you first meet him, but once you break through his facade you find that he's a warm, friendly fellow. What I enjoy about old Ed's style is the fact that he takes a different approach to every song—vocal as well as mental, he can sing a raw, rough Newfoundland song in the virile way it should be treated, and then do a sensitive thing like The Western Wind so well that even that insensitive Ottawa Valley friend of mine will sit sniffing into an old paper towel."

He recalled that "back in the old days Ed couldn't play the guitar, so he had Ray Morris accompany him. Then he decided he'd better learn, and he used to sit in the radio lounge here," Rawhide pointed nostalgically to a distant corner, "and pick out basic chords on his guitar. It used to get on Marvin Mellowbell's nerves a bit, so Grannie knitted him some a-gora ear plugs to wear when he was sitting in the lounge going over his ad lib material. Now Ed's quite proficient at the guitar, believe it or not, but Marvin's still plugging away at his ad libs."

We mentioned that McCurdy had gathered together some of his top ballad-singing friends in New York and recorded a breezy program of song and conversation for Tuesday night's Project '60 on CBC radio at 8.

"Were they drunk or sober?" Rawhide wanted to know.

We told him the program planners described the show as "free-wheeling and rollicking, full of fun and musical fireworks."

"Ed sneak in any risqué ballads?"

We admitted there were a few mild ones but reminded Rawhide that according to a letter that appeared in CBC Times recently, he was in no position to cast the first stone. Hadn't his Armistice Day show raised some eyebrows?

ED McCURDY

He gave a loud snort. "The word 'hell' was mentioned, that was all. I had this LP of British army songs recorded by one of the most interesting people I've ever met, fellow by the name of Ewen McColl. I played one of his songs on the show and it brought in my biggest mail response in 12 years, so I decided to use it on Armistice Day. It was honestly written, sprang up among army troops, not this Tin Pan Alley ersatz material. But look what happened . . .!"

He began mumbling alarmingly into his moustache and to get his mind off the subject we asked him for his candid opinion about the gang McCurdy had collected for the ballad show.

Lee Yayas of The Weavers? "He's a big amiable bass who has done a lot of refurbishing for The Weavers. An ex-preacher, I think. He'll take a fragment of song and arrange it differently or add a word of his own and make it something really interesting."

Eric Darling of The Terriers? "A fine musician. I first noticed him on an LP of Ed's playing the banjo so exceptionally well that I checked the record to see who was doing it. He's also recorded some unusual folk material, like Run Come See Jerusalem, and Bahama Lullaby, a haunting mixture of lullaby and religion."

Oscar Brandt? (Rawhide gave a delighted chortle). "His best work is unbroadcastable. He does wonderful Royal Navy sea chanteys or American drinking songs a bit on the rough side, the sort you can enjoy in the privacy of your own living room with the keyhole stuffed."

Jean Ritchie? "She leaves me cold!" (Rawhide drew down the corners of his mouth as far as the ends of his drooping moustache). "I know Ed wouldn't agree with me, but I think she makes an objectionable sound, purposely hard. Peggy Seeger, Pete's sister, does this, too."

Cynthia Gooding? (His eyes lit up). "She's one of my favourites—has the most unusual voice of all the female balladeers. Sort of like a male tenor." (Here Rawhide threw back his head and demonstrated so realistically that several strolling artists were momentarily shocked out of blasé unconcern). "She's meticulous about accents, and can sing in any language as if she'd been born to it. Her Italian songs are my favourites."

Impressed by Rawhide's uninhibited solo work we were curious to know why he had never recorded ballads himself. Pleased but embarrassed he shuffled his feet, shifted his tobacco plug again and said he was strictly a shower balladeer. "Though I've had the temerity to pump in my raucous background to a song by Alfred Deller, the counter-tenor, and shocked more than one fan!"

That reminded him of something and his plaid shirt began to heave with laughter again. When we demanded to be let in on the joke he said: "You know my old side-kick, Max Ferguson?" (We admitted to a nodding acquaintance). "Well, that guy's got a suicidal compulsion—the same one that makes kids walk out on broken ice to see how far they can go before they fall through. He wants to sing. And you won't believe this, but someone actually took him seriously and asked him to sing on TV's Open House Christmas Eve! He's going to do two Newfoundland songs and he's got us all in such a state of nerves over it that Marvin is reduced to a shivering jelly. May be partly jealousy, too." Rawhide's eyes twinkled impishly under his shaggy brows.

How do distinguished thespians like your boys and Grannie feel about folk music? we asked him.

"Oh, they can take it or leave it. Mostly leave it," Rawhide chewed disgustedly for a moment. "I won't let them in the studio with me on music nights, because they carry on so, always wanting to get into the act, so they sit around in the lounge feeling sorry for themselves, gumming the hell out of soft tar or tying knots in a piece of string. Keeping busy in their own way. But me, well, I've liked folk songs for years. When I started my show 12 years ago there was no program of folk music on the air, as far as I know. I poked around in the CBC music library and found some wonderful discs that even the librarian didn't know about. I like folk songs because if you haven't the time or money to travel to other countries (and we all can't be as footloose as Grannie), you can be reminded that there are such places and can learn something of their culture through the stories their songs tell."

How does he choose his records?

"I guess I'm a selfish old coot, but I just pick what appeals to me. The melody usually gets me first, and then the lyrics don't matter. Take She's Like the Swallow. The lyrics are full of maudlin Victorian emotion, but the melody makes you forget the extravagance of the words. The singer's voice is important, too. I don't know why, but Irish tenors drive me up the wall. I have an Irish background myself, but something should be done about them!" (Rawhide imitated the sort of reedy, nasal tenor who takes the high notes with his eyebrows, and dismissed the whole clan with a grimace that drew his ruddy features into a tight little ball in the middle of his face). "You know how often they've murdered the Minstrel Boy? Well recently I played Paul Robeson's recording and it was like hearing it for the first time."

Did he feel that an untrained voice was more suited to folk ballads than one with the edges smoothed off?

"I can't stand Pinza singing anything popular, but I can enjoy a ballad by an old Kentucky mountaineer if he's inherently musical. It's the feeling for music that counts with the untrained voice." Rawhide stretched out his legs, STARS OF THREE CBC SHOWS—Tommy Hunter (left), Juliette, and Gordie Tapp, were together in Winnipeg for this picture, taken at the Winnipeg International Airport. The three were returning from the Northwest Territories, where they were entertaining servicemen and their families.

hooked his thumbs in his braces and said he would "like to think that junky rock 'n' roll won't be around in a hundred years. But folk songs will. Because of their simplicity and slow evolution they've survived centuries, and that's a test of their worth."

We sounded him out on his opinion of Canadian folk songs and he began to bristle. "Canada can hold her head up with any country, thanks mainly to Newfoundland. Newfie songs are either hauntingly beautiful, as She's Like the Swallow, or very lively nonsense songs. And the mention of so many people's and place names in their songs gives them an immediacy that I find very appealing. Joyce Sullivan and Charles Jordan have recorded an LP called Folk Songs of Canada. Every cut is first rate."

"Music is a very personal thing, you know. I have only one recording of the Irish balladeer Delia Murphy singing The Spinning Wheel, and it gets all kinds of mail response every time I play it. And yet Burl Ives, who's largely responsible for the revival of folk songs, is hardly ever mentioned by people who write in to me. I'd say a folk song doesn't have to be old to have appeal, but it must be authentic and simple. For instance, Odetta, the Negro singer who has a voice I think is as good as Marian Anderson's, has recorded Lass From the Low Country. It sounds old and the fact that it's modern doesn't effect my enjoyment at all."

How about the snob appeal folk songs are acquiring?

"Oh, snob appeal is good!" People are beginning to learn the difference between authentic stuff and drivel. And some of the young kids will even walk out of a concert if they think it's phoney. Me and my boys will be very interested to hear what sort of show old Ed and his pals have dreamed up. If he does a good job Grannie has promised to knit him a warm muffler to keep that lovely larynx warm."

Rawhide shuffled some records and glanced pointedly at his watch to show what a busy man he was. When we reluctantly closed our notebook and told him we would not detain him any longer, he creaked to his feet, glared around unsuccessfully again for a spittoon, and went off mumbling something about expecting artists to do a good job without basic equipment.—June Graham.

Agricultural Outlook for 1960. Jack Trower, Ottawa, liaison officer of the CBC farm and fisheries department, will report on the general agricultural situation. With interpretation by George Atkins, Harold Dodds and Jim Ross on how it affects the Ontario-Quebec region. Gardener Earl Cox will talk on a day in the Life of a Plant.

Citizens' Forum

Do you want a comprehensive government health plan? This is an examination of the case for and against the expansion of our present government hospital plan into a full-scale medical scheme. Does hospital insurance give the average family sufficient protection against the high cost of illness? Is there actually a need for more assistance? If there is, is larger government action the most efficient and the fairest method of coping with the problem? How would a comprehensive government health plan affect the patient, the medical profession, the community and the taxpayer? Could private insurance meet the need while avoiding the dangers some see in a government plan?

Before an audience of medical students in Winnipeg, the following panel will discuss the issues: Dr. John Hastings, Professor of Public Health

a film about the plight of the unmarried mother, which will be previewed Monday on "Open House." ARMAGH is a home in Ontario run by the Presbyterian Church. The film is one of the new religious series, "Heritage," which begins next Sunday on CBC-TV.

day, we'll hear about ARMAGH and other programs in this filmed series.

WOMAN IN THE GALLERY.

Dorothy Moes has long been interested in art and not long ago, she herself opened an art gallery where the works of Canadian painters from all provinces are featured. Today she will tell viewers how she set about her business, the work involved in organizing an art gallery, and show some of the work currently being exhibited there.

P.M. Party

Audience - participation program for women with emcee Alan Millar, singers Donna Miller and Allan Blye, Rudy Toth and his orchestra, Rex Loring and Daniel the Spaniel. Today's guests are dance team The Dunhills.

Science All Around Us

Inertia, the physical state of objects travelling in a straight line, until stopped by an external force, is the subject of this week's show. There will be a demonstration of the gyroscope and, surprisingly, some facts of magic revealed as relying on this scientific state for their success.

Youth '60

This week's show will consist of two segments. The first is concerned with the timely topic of teen-age driving. Dennis is taking his driver's test so he will be talking to Inspector Pearson, Head of Traffic Safety, and Traffic Officer Sam Wheeler, of the Safety Division, who will be guests on the show. Viewers will meet George Dobson, a boy from a hot rod club. Another guest will discuss his summons for careless driving and how he learned the value of careful driving at the Metro Police Safety Division Driving School. A girl will discuss driving education. Jimmy and Lin, professional dancers, will give a lesson in the cha cha.

Quick Draw McGraw

Beginning a new series of children's television cartoon films, starring McGraw, a horse noted for being "fast on the draw." This award-winning series has its premiere today.

How About That?

This week Jim Mitchell presents two films - "Time to Remember" and

"Tonight in Britain." The first is a review of Britain's tourist attractions as seen through the eyes of Danny Kaye, who is chief actor and commentator. The second film, which was shown to H.M. The Queen and H.R.H. The Duke of Edinburgh at the Royal Command Film Performance, illustrates the many forms of evening entertainment such as Theatres, Night Clubs, Ballet, etc. Jim will also have a special guest to discuss "things British."

Music '60

Presents the Jack Kane Hour - American composer Arthur Schwartz and singer Allan Blye are tonight's guests.

Meet Your N.H.L. Stars

Fifth in a new series of articles on N.H.L. stars to be seen in action on Saturday night telecasts over the CBC-TV network.

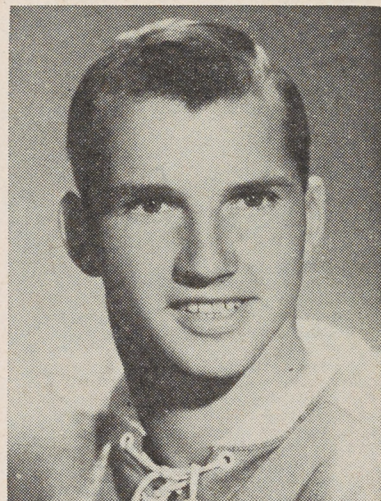

5. DON MARSHALL

On any team but the Montreal Canadiens, Donnie Marshall would be a highly publicized star. On the super-talented Canadiens he gets little ink, scores few goals, but has earned a reputation as hockey's top penalty-killer.

Marshall wasn't always a defensive specialist. As a junior with the Canadiens and as a senior with the Cincinnati Mohawks he was a top scorer and won both league's Most Valuable Player Awards. In his first taste of pro hockey he won the American Hockey League rookie of the year award and achieved a record total of 96 points with 39 goals.

Obviously, Marshall was ready to play in the N.H.L. but the Canadiens had plenty of forwards capable of filling opposition nets. Marshall became a penalty-killer and utility forward. Few experts would disagree with the assertion that he's now the best defensive forward in the league.

Marshall is one of the league's most gentlemanly players—a happy circumstance, since no team can afford a chippy penalty-killer who is liable to put them two men short.

When asked to fill in for an injured regular Marshall has shown the old offensive skill and versatility in playing all three forward positions. Used as an offensive threat very infrequently he has nevertheless scored as many as 22 goals in one season.

So highly do the Canadiens value Donnie Marshall that they recently nixed a proposed trade with the Rangers who offered Camille Henry for Marshall. Henry has scored 55 goals to Marshall's 32 in the last two years.

Donald Robert Marshall was born on March 23, 1932, in Verdun, Quebec. He's 5 ft. 10 ins. tall and weighs a slight 160 lbs.

gems, from ancient charms and amulets to jewellery.

ARTIST IN THE KITCHEN. Entertaining is still going on this week, so Madame Benoit will give some English recipes for savoury cheese party snacks.

ON THE MAP. Dr. Paul Fox with a news report.

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

On today's Mary Liz Show, Cynthia Coop concludes her furniture series with a close look at coffee-tables and end-tables. Alice Poyser returns with a review of books of interest to busy homemakers. Anne Dumoulin of the Welfare Council of Greater Winnipeg begins a new series on major welfare issues, and Dr. Ferdinand Eckhardt presents a preview of current Art Gallery exhibits, including that of the Royal Academy of Artists and "Folk Painters of the Canadian West."

The Friendly Giant

Today, children can pay weekly visits to a farm, and a farm with a great giant's boot just beyond the back quarter. So, naturally the Friendly Giant knows a lot about farm animals and he has a book for his audience called Friendly Farm Animals.

Maggie Muggins

There's consternation in the meadow today. Invitations have been received from Violet Skunk, and Maggie and her friends are wondering what they'll get to eat at a skunk's tea party. Catastrophe strikes when Mrs. Merryweather discovers someone has been tampering with her hen house and things look black for hostess Violet. Mr. McGarrity gives some sage advice and everything works out for Violet who learns that there's more than one way to knock yourself out in entertaining.

Sportstime

A class of girls from Fern Avenue school in Toronto demonstrates stunts, a girls' counterpart to boys' wrestling classes. The girls perform feats of balance, timing and teamwork.

Children's Newsreel

The first of a new series of newsreels especially designed for children, items emanating from countries around the world.

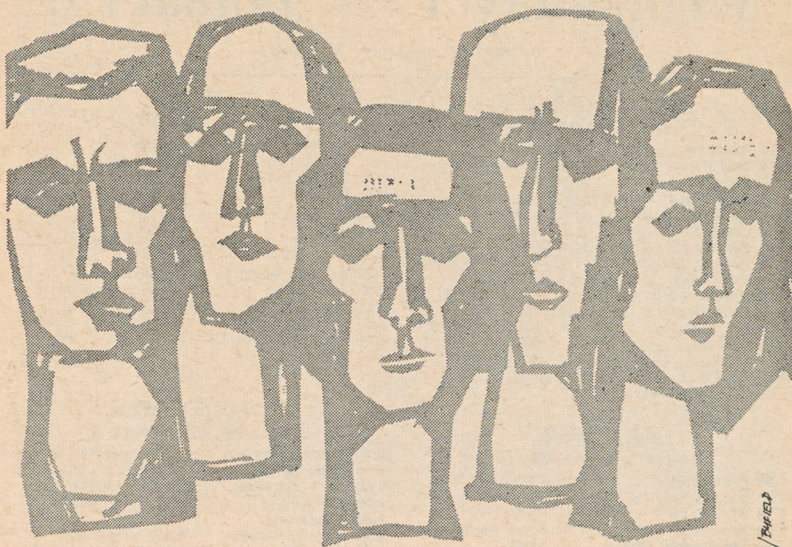

Chevy Show

This week — "Around the World with Nelly Blye." This special musical comedy stars Janet Blair. Miss Blair's guest is Cornel Wilde.

The Cocktail Party

T. S. Eliot's play, produced in Toronto by Mario Prizek. Actually, the

Tuesday on Ford Startime

T. S. Eliot's The Cocktail Party

play has two cocktail parties; in the two years between them the spiritual relationships among the guests undergo basic changes, and these are the subject of Eliot's study. The Cocktail Party completes Eliot's progression from the stylistic, formal devices like the chorus of Murder in the Cathedral, through The Family Reunion, to the apparently mundane situation and conversation symbolized by a cocktail party. Eliot uses the mundane to drive home essentially spiritual points, and he does this through verse. But, like Moliere's M. Jourdain, the viewer will not necessarily be aware of the fact that he is listening to poetry. "The use of verse allows Eliot to give a balance and poise and repetition of phrase which makes his points with quiet emphasis," says producer Prizek. "He is particularly skilful at modulating from realistic to ritualistic language." This use of verse to allow the discussion of deep-lying values in terms of everyday conversation perhaps supplies a link between the great themes of the classic and romantic theatre, and the naturalistic "keyhole" theatre of today. (See late notes of next week's issue, page 4, for complete cast).

My big complaint against Westerns is that all these cowboys, sheriffs and bad men are without exception beastly to their horses. They gallop everywhere, all the time, full tilt, and after a gruelling journey, they dismount flinging the rein casually over a hitching rail and make with all speed for a saloon for a much-needed drink, wash and brush up. What about their horse? I can honestly say I've never seen a Westerner's horse getting so much as a drink, let alone a mouthful of hay, in three years of viewing.—Ba Mason on BBC.

how it's done, and today—and for the next two weeks—we'll make cushions.

FACTS AND FABRICS. This is the last of Mary Humphries' present series on fabrics, and today Mary will discuss the various fibres used in making blankets.

KEEP IN TRIM. Gained weight? Get rid of it by exercising and follow the example of our teacher, Gwen Vernon.

National Schools Telecast

First program of a new weekly series (see story this page). The first eight programs are for grades 2 and 3 (first half) and grades 4 to 6 (second half). Today—"Rhythm and Melody," a series designed to develop children's enjoyment of music, and "The Face of Canada," a series designed to illustrate the geographical features of Canada; the first episode deals with the eastern sea coast. From Toronto.

Friendly Giant

In the midst of a blizzard, Friendly talks about summer. He reads a book called Over in the Meadow, and plays a duet with Rusty.

R.C.M.P.

A whole community is terrorized until Cpl. Gagnier (Giles Pelletier) meets a "gunslinger" (John Drainie) in a showdown.

Live A Borrowed Life

Charles Templeton is host as Anna Cameron, Bill Walker, Elwy Yost and a guest panelist attempt to identify the famous person portrayed by a guest expert. From Toronto.

The Unforeseen

"The Doomdorf Mystery," by Melville Post. A bullying farmer and bootlegger is found shot through the heart in a room locked from the inside. Two people—his wife and a religious fanatic—eagerly confess to the crime.

Explorations

This week—the last of four "Music to See" programs on the music of the Church. Helmut Blume will introduce contemporary church music, sung by the Festival Singers conducted by Elmer Iseler. The musical illustrations — Motet and Kyrie by Healey Willan, Hosannah Benedictus Hosannahs from the Mass in G by Vaughan Williams, Pater Noster by Stravinsky, Credo from San Sebastian Mass by Villa-Lobos, Sanctus from Mass in G by Poulenc, Motet—Te Mater by Jean Papineau-Couture, and In the Beginning by Aaron Copland. From West Ellesmere United Church, Toronto.

FIRST NATIONAL SCHOOL TELECAST—Patricia MacFarlane, a music supervisor for the North York (Ontario) Board of Education, will teach "Rhythm and Music," first of the new National School Telecasts, Jan. 10, on CBC-TV.

First National School Telecasts Begin Jan. 6

This week the CBC-TV network and the privately-owned affiliated stations begin a series of school telecasts. Each Wednesday afternoon, school children across the country will watch television programs on such subjects as music, children of other lands, Canadian geography, science, current events, and places of historic fame in Canada.

Some months ago a CBC Times article on TV and education listed some of the contributions that TV could make to classroom teaching. Among them: TV can bring experts in their fields or great artists into the classroom; science programs can use techniques and equipment not available to individual classrooms, while the close-up offers each student an excellent view of any experiments; subjects like history and English literature can be dramatized very effectively; the TV set can, with the minimum of fuss, take students to museums, art galleries, industrial plants, famous historical places, and so on; and TV can give vivid treatment to national and international affairs. The series coming up promises to make full use of many of these advantages.

A booklet put out by the CBC publications branch suggests to teachers how best to use these telecasts—including preparatory and follow-up activities—and also contains an evaluation sheet which it is hoped teachers will fill in and return to the School Broadcasts Department. This will be most valuable for planning future telecasts.

The School Broadcasts Department of the CBC will produce these telecasts which have been planned by the National Advisory Council on School Broadcasting. This Council was organized in 1943 to advise the CBC on all programs planned for use in the classroom. The Council consists of representatives of all 10 provincial departments of education, and various national groups interested in education.

Details on each week's program will be carried in the CBC Times. This Wednesday's program is described on this page. (See also picture above).

AM I MY BROTHER'S KEEPER? (1 of 4). In time of national emergency or disaster, everyone wants to do what he can to help and then get back to his normal untroubled routine. But always, there are so many people around us who need help — the elderly, chronically ill, mentally sick, crippled, blind people whose lives would be even harder without the help of the volunteer worker. We're going to find out today where help is most needed, from Mrs. Gwen Richardson, Director of the Volunteer Bureau of Social Planning Council in Toronto. In the next three weeks, we'll meet some of the volunteer workers.

MUSICAL NOTES. Ruby Mercer, a very well known name in American music circles from her radio series "Mrs. Opera," now lives in Canada. Today she begins the first of a new series of stories about music and musicians.

Boyd, Q.C.

Courtroom drama series. This week — "A Couple of Macs."

CBWT—Mary Liz Show

Mrs. G. R. Rowe of Brandon is the fashion expert on "The Mary Liz Show" today to report on trends and triumphs of millinery in various American and Canadian fashion centres. Frances MacKay presents valuable information in her "Buy of the Week" series. Myra Hess relates ancient legends and describes some of the customs still observed during celebrations of the Ukrainian Christmas.

This Living World

Viewers will see a Canadian mountain lion at close quarters on today's show. Some of his relatives are also discussed—the puma, the jaguar and the ocelot, then, to provide variety, the armadillo and the boa.

Talent Caravan

This week George Murray and Ricky Hyslop's orchestra present talent from the London, Ont., district.

Close-Up

This week — a filmed report on Castro's revolution in Cuba, produced by Pat Watson. (See story this page).

Man From Blackhawk

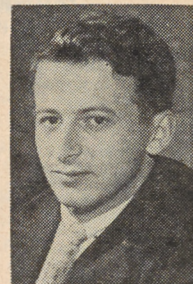

Adventures of an insurance company investigator in 19th-century Chicago. This week—"Death at Noon."

Close-Up on Cuba

The co-producer of "Close-Up" is in Cuba with cameraman Eric Durschmied and interviewer Tom Hill, preparing a report on Fidel Castro's revolution for this Thursday's CLOSE-UP on CBC-TV. (It was Durschmied who, smuggled into the Sierra Maestra mountains a little over a year ago, got the first TV interview with the then outlawed revolutionary leader). Here is a pre-program report—

By PAT WATSON

ONE YEAR ago on Close-Up, Fidel Castro declared that he would bring Cuba free elections and the end of tyranny and rule by force, but a beard and sub-machine gun are the status symbols in Castro's Cuba today.

In power for a year, the rebels cling to their identity with guerilla fighting in the Sierra Maestra mountains, and the people seem to love it. The masses believe the advent of Fidel was the coming of a saviour, and the men who fought with him are offered the veneration due to junior gods.

Tiny silver signs on the doors of huts and villas say "Gracias Fidel," or "Fidel, This Is Your Home."

Toy vendors all over Havana sell bearded rebel dolls. Six-year-olds have their portraits taken in false beards. Victory is secure for the time, at home if not abroad.

This week Close-Up goes to Havana to assess the real accomplishments of this young government whose Big Three have a collective age of 95.

The biggest single gain is the destruction of national apathy. In the fields as in the cities, everyone is working for Castro. A maiden aunt, long resigned to living as a duenna and tea-pourer to a middle-class family of girls told me, "Fidel says we must all work so I have gone back to study to get a government job."

A six-year-old showed Tom Hill his medal for proficiency in English. "If I study very hard," he said, "Fidel will take me to the Sierra Maestra with him."

Other accomplishments of the new regime: prostitution, although still active, is no longer overt; cocaine production has been outlawed, and the law enforced; hospitals and schools have appeared where there were none before; millions of acres of land, idle under the old regime, are being worked again.

Workers at a collective farm, Cuban-style, in Pinar Del Rio province told me they earn $3.25 a day as against the former $1.50. Crop diversification will keep them busy year-round for a change.

Close-Up's cameras found the guajeros marching to their huts from tobacco planting singing the anthem of the revolution. Soon the same rhythms will crash out from their machettes in the sugar harvest, and tomatoes and peanuts will follow that.

But Tom Hill also interviewed Cubans who feel that agrarian reform is wrecking Cuba, not saving it, and that Castro is playing right into the communists' hands. This is a helter-skelter revolution.

Cubans worry that their governors are young and inexperienced, that power is concentrated in the hands of the army, that Prime Minister Castro spends four hours addressing a meeting of workers and six hours talking on TV but has no time to meet his own people at his office.

William Morgan, the soldier of fortune who serves the Cuban

Caribou Mystery

PAUL GUYOT, who filmed and directed the program on the attempts of the Manitoba Game Branch to discover the reason for the disappearance of the caribou from north-western Manitoba, describes the hardships involved in the preparation of such a program. It will be seen Saturday, January 2, on CBC-TV.

THE place was Duck Lake along the northern frontier of Manitoba. The time was mid-September. The experiment was to put a metal tag and a double yellow streamer on the ears of the caribou as they swam across an open stretch of water. My assignment was to photograph this venture.

The expedition was from The Pas to an abandoned Hudson's Bay post on Duck Lake. After unloading our gear we immediately felt the grip of the immensity of space around us. It was not our fate here at Duck Lake to see the caribou in the great hordes in which they are known to travel. They were, so to speak, exploded over the land. I realized I had a difficult task before me.

My equipment consisted of three cameras, a tripod, and 6,000 feet of 16 mm. film.

Our day started at 5 a.m.—every day. The departure from camp, travelling by canoes on the rough lake, the camp at the crossing—all these had to be photographed, and this part of the story was comparatively easy. But the main part of the story was going to be about the caribou—caribou undisturbed in their own habitat until they were interfered with by men during the tagging operation.

Taking the tagging sequences—some from the shore line and some from canoes, was quite exciting. Somehow I had to keep many things in mind at the same time—exposure, angles, the water spray (which had to be kept off my lenses), and my balance—while perched on the bow of a canoe.

The caribou entered the water from the north shore and the men hid along the south shore. When the animals were about half-way across the men would dash out to their canoes. This would send the caribou into a frenzy as they wheeled around and swam back to safety. I wanted some shots from the caribou side, so I built myself a blind and waited there for three hours. Toward evening about 150 caribou came plodding into the water and started swimming across, unaware of my presence. When the canoes disrupted their advance they dashed back toward me. As they galloped out of the water in panic I ran out into the open so as not to miss the coming onslaught. I stood there rigid, shooting all the film I could while the caribou were dashing on either side of me at arm's length.

This was a scene to behold—something every photographer dreams of. But when I checked my equipment I found that in the excitement I had forgotten to allow for the poor light. This unique episode was filmed in almost total darkness! Fortunately I had another chance a few days later, and I managed to catch the animals from all angles.

Spending twelve days in the North on this assignment was an adventure I shall never forget.

MUSIC ON RADIO

By BOYD NEEL

ASK any student to tell you something about Ernest Chausson and he will probably tell you that he died by falling off his bicycle. This would appear to be Chausson's sole claim to posthumous fame. He did, however, leave quite a lot of very lovely music which is not played nearly as much as it should be. On Sunday morning we have the Piano Trio, opus 3, which dates from 1882. Vincent d'Indy was a great admirer of Chausson's music and himself completed the String Quartet in C minor which was left unfinished by the composer.

Chausson came of a wealthy family and began the study of law, not taking music seriously until he was in his twenties, when he became a private pupil of Cesar Franck. One might have thought these circumstances would have made him more or less of a dilettante when it came to composition, but this was far from being the case, and a more serious and hard-working composer has seldom lived. He acted for ten years as secretary of the Société Nationale de Musique, that splendid brotherhood of musicians who did so much for the formation of a productive school of symphony and chamber music — types of composition till then almost unknown, and certainly very little cultivated, in France.

It is little known that Chausson wrote an opera, King Arthur, for which he wrote his own libretto. It was produced four years after his death at the Theatre de la Monnaie in Brussels. This beautiful work could well do with a revival today. The Poème for violin and orchestra is heard quite often, as are some of the beautiful songs. The Symphony in B flat is also played occasionally and is one of the finest works to come out of France in the 19th century. As far as chamber music goes, his so-called "Concerto" is sometimes to be heard today.

As regards his vocal music, the masterpiece in this line is undoubtedly the Poème de l'amour et de la mer, a large symphonic work for mezzo-soprano and orchestra. This was a piece which Maggie Teyte sang so unforgettably and which I had the pleasure of conducting for her on many occasions. In this work occurs the famous song, Le temps de lilas, which is often sung by itself. Its effect, however, is as nothing compared to when it is heard in its proper context in the Poème. Perhaps the CBC will let us hear some more Chausson in the near future. I sincerely hope so.

On Tuesday evening in the Distinguished Artists series we can hear more French music sung by Rolande Garnier of Winnipeg. Songs by Franck, Debussy and Duparc are included in the program. Here we have three composers who were contemporaries of Chausson. The songs of Duparc are much in the same style as those of Chausson, and surely here we have one of the most extraordinary composers of all time, because his reputation rests entirely on fourteen songs which were composed over a period of sixteen years. I can think of no other composer whose reputation exists on such a tiny output. Apart from the songs there are only six little pieces for piano and a Symphonic Poem for orchestra, which is sometimes heard. In the songs, however, Duparc proved himself to be one of the greatest writers of this form of music that the world has known and there are few

Composer's Comments

In a letter to Tom Taylor, producer of Winnipeg Sunday Concert, the English composer Sir Arthur Bliss has included some comments on his compositions to be played on the program this week (Jan. 3).

Of The Enchantress for contralto and orchestra, to be sung by Rolande Garnier: "This was written especially for Kathleen Ferrier, who sang it most beautifully. I always used to tell her that she had far too good and noble a character to sing it, as the enchantress in the Theocrites Idyll is the opposite—a fury scorned who will stoop to any device, including black magic, to conjure back her lover who has deserted her."

Of Checkmate. "This was written for the Sadlers Wells Ballet especially for their gala visit to Paris in 1937. It has been danced by them many hundreds of times all over the world. I recall that, at the first performance, the young Moagot Fonteyn danced as a humble pawn! The last time I conducted it was in Moscow and Leningrad. The Russians are great chess players and I had games with the orchestral players during the intervals of rehearsing."

Conquest of the Air: "This suite is chosen from the music written for an ambitious documentary film showing the history of flight from the earliest days until now."

The all-Bliss program will be conducted by Eric Wild, who will have the help of some composer's instructions, included in the letter to Mr. Taylor: "Please tell Mr. Wild I've metronomed the Red Knight Mazurka too slow. He can speed it up a bit . . . In The Wind movement of Conquest of the Air the element to be taken into consideration is that this is but a mild breeze here . . ."

MATINEE HIGHLIGHTS

WOMEN AT THE TOP: A Summing Up, Jean Morrison, Ottawa, interviews Marion Royce. During the past nine weeks, Matinee Highlights has presented Canadian business and professional women who have achieved success in their work. Today, to conclude the series, Marion Royce, director of women's bureau of the Canadian Department of Labour, discusses the role of the working woman in Canada, the opportunities afforded her, some of her problems and some of her achievements. Jean Morrison is a freelance broadcaster and frequent contributor to CBC programs.

HOME IS A CASTLE: The Duke of Bedford has been making headlines in Britain and on this continent for his unconventional management of his ancestral home, Woburn Abbey. He's turned it into a first-class tourist attraction and he's not above publicizing it when the need arises. In this interview with Toronto broadcaster Pat Patterson, he talks about his home, his family and his theories about the aristocracy in the atomic age (From Trans-Canada Matinee 4-11-59)

TWO CANADIANS DISCOVER AUSTRALIA. Dorothy Curtis-Hare, a Canadian teacher, has been living and working in Australia for four years, teaching, performing on television, doing school broadcasts, women's programs and special talks. She and her daughter have lived on a "station" (cattle ranch) and in various other places and have done a great deal of travelling. In this talk, Mrs. Curtis-Hare tells about their arrival in Australia and about their trip to the famous, and largely unexplored, "outback." (From Trans-Canada Matinee 30-12-59).

In my opinion sculpture is the ideal occupation for anybody, everybody. It keeps you fit physically. If you live in the country as I do, it gets you into the open air. I can carve and do my sculpture on a fine summer's day outside, and not feel that I'm wast-

Report on Refugees. World Refugee Year, inaugurated by the United Nations in 1959, goes into its second half. Today, and once monthly for the next six months, Toronto broadcaster and writer Monica Mugan reports on what's being done in Canada to assist in the rehabilitation of the world's refugees.

Cooking School of the Air. Emphasis on this year's cooking school, when it can be said to have had an emphasis, has been on proteins and their value in the diet. Today, Eustella Langdon ends her series on the protein note with some suggestions for desserts containing this high-quality nutritive. Naturally, custards go to the top of the list. A supplement, containing all the recipes mentioned by Mrs. Langdon in her current talks, be obtained by writing to "Cooking School of the Air," CBC, Box 500, Toronto.

The Indian and His Problems. Dr. Jacob Fried is an anthropologist in the Sociology Department in McGill University, Montreal. He talks to free-lance broadcaster, Kati Vita, about some of the problems of the Canadian Indian in present-day society.

Daily Features . . . News commentary by Richard Gwyn of Ottawa, songs by Harry Mossfield, baritone and "Diary of a Nobody" by George and Walter Weedon Grossmith,

OUR COVER—

Gathered together on this week's cover are the three stars of this Monday's CBC Variety Hour from Winnipeg. Pianist José Poneira and vocalist Georges LaFleche are well known to the prairie radio audience and to TV viewers in Winnipeg. Denyse Angé has been seen on many television programs—most recently, the Wayne and Shuster Hour. For more about Denyse, see story this page.

Iceland's very name is a contradiction; for this is an island of russet and black volcanic heights; lakes, waterfalls, volcanoes and hot springs. There is some ice, of course, but there's certainly no eskimo-igloo and polar-bear landscape."—Daniel Counihan, on BBC.

She Made the Most Of Her Troubles

A Broadway actress' decision to become a nun, an auto accident, and a severe attack of laryngitis have all helped shape the career of singer Denyse Angé, guest vocalist on the CBC Variety Hour this week from Winnipeg.

Denyse, 23, was born in Quebec City and got her first taste of show-business while attending high school there. One of her teachers, Sister Joan Bosco, had performed on Broadway in Oklahoma and other musicals before becoming a nun. She spotted Denyse in a school choir and persuaded her to take her first fling at a singing role—as the mother in a school production of Hansel and Gretel.

In 1957 (by which time she had gained experience in television and night-clubs, and won Pick the Stars and the Maurice Rosenfeld Award for the most promising newcomer to radio and television) Denyse went to New York to appear on Arthur Godfrey's and Jackie Gleason's television shows. While there she developed laryngitis. When she recovered her voice had a completely different quality—the dark, throaty sound which her fans love!

Denyse's troubles weren't over. In May, 1958, she was in an auto accident, and for a full year she had to undergo a series of operations on her leg. Between trips to the hospital she worked as hostess at a Quebec club, introducing such acts as Duke Ellington, Dick Haymes and the Four Aces. The six months she spent in this job as a result of the accident gave her a chance to study some of the top night-club acts and she feels this has played an important part in her own development.

During the past year Denyse has sung in Jamaica, Trinidad, Toronto (Tommy Hunter Show, Swing Easy, Wayne and Shuster) and Quebec.

The future? Denyse would like to try her hand at a small dramatic role. In the meantime she is working hard to develop a versatile singing style and to avoid being cast as a French torch singer.

On the CBC Variety Hour this Monday (Jan. 4) Denyse will join co-hosts Jose Poneira and Georges LaFleche in a program of well-known songs from famous motion pictures. Here are the selections to be heard — The Poor People of Paris, The Rose Tattoo, and Padam Padam (sung by Denyse), You're Driving Me Crazy, Swinging on a Star, As Time Goes By, and Try a Little Tenderness (sung by Georges), Without You, and Sweet Georgia Brown (sung and played by Jose), It's a Lonesome Old Town, Ruby, and You're Just in Love (played by the orchestra, conducted by Bob McMullin), and Yesterdays (played by saxophonist Frank Lewis). The program will be produced by Dan Wood.

The Invisible Rain

Expert opinion on the potential danger of radioactive fallout from tests of nuclear weapons

RADIOACTIVE fallout, "The Invisible Rain," and its constant measured fall to earth is being subjected to a full-scale scientific examination around the world. We occasionally learn of the results of these surveys but what do they tell us? Is fallout a real hazard or is it an insignificant risk as many experts have stated? Is it a threat to future generations, and if so, have we the moral right to inflict harm and suffering on future mankind? To find the answers to these questions, probably the most urgent and significant of our times, CBC radio's Project '60 has conducted its own world-wide survey of fact and opinion on the subject. Leading scientists in Japan, Europe, the United States, Britain and Canada provide exclusive reports to the program this Tuesday night. Bertrand Russell and Albert Schweitzer are among those who provide new thought and insight into the moral question of nuclear testing. An "atomic maiden" and other Hiroshima survivors bring the question to its most human terms. Geneticists and biologists re-examine findings and provide new estimates concerning radiation damage to those of us living and those yet unborn. Religious leaders give their views on "nuclear morality."

On August 11, 1958, a 15-nation U.N. Committee agreed unanimously that "mankind faces new and largely unknown hazards as a result of radioactive fallout from nuclear weapons tests." By some estimates, about 1,000,000 more people will die of leukemia and other diseases because of weapon tests already held. Strontium 90, about which we have heard so much and know so little, will continue to drift down in increasing amounts until the mid-60's. Canada and the United States are the "hottest" radiation fallout countries in the world because of varying wind conditions in the temperate zone of the Northern Hemisphere. It has brought an alarming increase in radioactive content of all plants, leading to an increasing intake of Strontium 90, particularly by children.

Out of all the facts and estimates and conflicting opinion, Project '60 gives the subject new meaning in purely human terms; a new understanding of The Invisible Rain and the danger it poses to all life on earth, now and in the future.

Dorothy Harpell—Busy Bride

On Dec. 28, at 2:00 p.m., Dorothy Harpell will become Mrs. Jack A. McKernan at a ceremony in Edmonton's Robertson United Church. Twenty-four hours later she'll arrive in Winnipeg to begin rehearsals for Frolic '60, a CBC Eastern network New Year's Eve telecast.

Dorothy has appeared on network television once before — on the Talent Caravan origination from Edmonton last May 29. At that time she was singing with a group called "The Shamrocks."

CBC program officials in Winnipeg, screening kins of talent and variety shows in search of promising new faces, were impressed by Dorothy's appearance and by her performance of Granada with the Shamrocks. Dorothy was then asked for an audition tape which was promptly supplied by radio station CFRN in Edmonton. CBC producers Norman Lucas (radio) and Ernie Mutimer (TV), favourably impressed with the audition tape, invited Dorothy to sing on shows from Winnipeg over the holiday week between Christmas and New Year's.

Their timing was hardly ideal for Dorothy was right in the midst of preparations for her wedding. However, in the true showbusiness tradition, Dorothy accepted the offers for Frolic '60 and also the Dorothy Harpell Show, a 15-minute radio feature on the western regional network Dec. 30.

Crumpets for Tea. If you think there's no possible relationship between crumpets and sewer-pipe, you've never met Jean and Tommy Tweed and spent a day on their farm outside of Toronto. It all began because Mrs. Tweed is an addict of auctions.

Family in Trouble. Peggy MacFarlane is the CBC's morning commentator in Edmonton. In this actuality report, she talks about families with problems, who helps them, where they go for help, and what can be done for them.

The Kingdom of Entertainment. Kate Munro grew up in Scotland before the days of radio, television and several other mechanical aids to recreation. She can't remember really suffering, though, and in this reminiscence she describes the entertainment she and her playmates did have.

and Phillip urges Annie to let him take care of the other children. When Enoch has been gone 10 years Phillip confesses his love to Annie and they are married the next year, but Annie is afraid to enter her own house, thinking she will see Enoch waiting for her there. She and Phillip have a child and a short time later Enoch turns up, having been wrecked on a desert island and only recently rescued. As he is now old, ill and bent, nobody recognizes him. Finding his own house empty he takes lodging in a tavern kept by a widow, who tells him of Annie, Phillip and the baby. He watches their new happiness from a distance and realizes he could never shatter their lives by letting them know of his return. He works quietly in the village and in his last illness confides his secret to his landlady, asking her to tell Annie, Phillip and the children that he died blessing them, and sends a lock of his baby's hair to Annie as proof of his identity.

army as commandante, told me that even he has to chase Castro for days to get a conference.

Men in the closely guarded 18th floor of INRA, Castro's headquarters, confess they don't know where he is most of the time. Since every decision of any importance must pass through his hands, Close-Up found officials of every rank waiting for Castro, waiting in his office, waiting in public meetings in hotels, in restaurants.

Indeed, all Cuba waits for Castro. "Where Fidel goes," they say, "we go." And they are right. The man Close-Up came to find holds Cuba in his hands for better or worse.

Close-Up this week takes a close look at this nation through the eyes of the people themselves.

People did not struggle and sacrifice and endure over the course of several thousand years to produce this civilization merely in order to make it possible for us, the contemporaries of 1959, to make an end to it, or to place it in jeopardy at our pleasure, for the sake of our own personal safety.—George F. Kennan, Professor of History, Princeton University on BBC.

"Elegy to the Uncelebrating," a New Year's play by Mac Shoub. The play is a series of scenes depicting various incidents in the lives of those who are not celebrating New Year's Eve. Two people say farewell at a railway station, a doctor performs a life-saving operation in a hospital, a nurse continues her efficient tour of duty, and a policeman walks his beat. All are oblivious of the merriment that abounds on New Year's Eve. The cast includes Leo Ciceri, Phyllis Carter, Griffith Brewer and Eileen Clifford. Rupert Caplan, producer. From Montreal.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

Small Fry and High Finance. Jean Sangwine, Winnipeg housewife, freelance writer and broadcaster, discovers that in the matter of children and their allowances, it's useful to have a man about the house.

A Woman Doctor in Africa. Dr. Cecily Williams is a consultant with the World Health Organization and has lived and worked in many parts of the world. She first practiced medicine in Africa 30 years ago, although she was born in the West Indies and took her medical degree in England. In this interview with Dr. Juanita Chambers, a psychologist at the Montreal Children's Hospital, Dr. Williams talks about the mothers and children she worked with in Africa. The interview was recorded for Matinee while Dr. Williams was in Montreal attending the International Pediatricians Congress.

Diet. Elizabeth Love, a Canadian doctor now living in England, is no stranger to Matinee listeners. She contributes frequently on medical subjects and not long ago reported on the joint meeting of the British and Canadian Medical Associations in Edinburgh. In the series which begins today, Dr. Love will talk about diet, about the food we eat for physical and mental health, and about the value of good nutrition. Her first talk concentrates on diets through recorded history and on food and its relationship to mental health.

Daily Features . . . News commentary by Mattie Rotenburg of Toronto, recorded music by Dr. Richard Johnston, and "Diary of a Nobody" by George and Walter Weedon Grossmith, adapted for radio and read by Eric Christmas.

CITIZENS' FORUM

Do you want a comprehensive government health plan? This is an examination of the case for and against the expansion of our present government hospital plan into a full-scale medical scheme. Does hospital insurance give the average family sufficient protection against the high cost of illness? Is there actually a need for more assistance? If there is, is larger government action the most efficient and the fairest method of coping with the problem? How would a comprehensive government health plan affect the patient, the medical profession, the community and the taxpayer? Could private insurance meet the need while avoiding the dangers some see in a government plan?

Before an audience of medical students in Winnipeg, the following panel will discuss the issues: Dr. John Hastings, Assistant professor of Public Health and Preventive Medicine, School of Hygiene, University of Toronto; Stefan Hansen, Vice President in Charge of Group Programs, Great West Life Assurance Co.; Dr. Cyril Hamwee, Town Doctor, Baldur, Manitoba. Chairman, Gordon Hawkins.

About "Scam"

You name it—if sports are involved, Fred's done it

Frederick Joseph Sgambati ("Scam"), has actively participated in virtually all phases of sports activity in his 38 years. He's been a player, referee, instructor, lecturer in physical education, sportscaster and play-by-play sports commentator. He has a dozen years' experience as an ORFU and Big Four referee.

By the time he joined the RCAF in 1942, his sports background was already extensive: he'd played football, basketball, hockey and baseball in high school and had been a referee with the Catholic Youth Organization since 1939.

He served in the United Kingdom and on his discharge in 1945 enrolled in the University of Toronto. While there, he also was a referee with the ORFU and Big Four. Summers, he was an instructor and sports director at camps operated by the province of Ontario.

After he graduated with honours in 1949 with a Bachelor of Physical and Health Education degree, he spent a school year as an associate lecturer in that subject at the University of Toronto.

In 1950, he enrolled in the Ontario College of Education and qualified as a secondary school instructor in physical education. He was a circuit teacher for a time and in 1951 joined station CKFH, Toronto.

He did two sportscasts a day, a 55-minute roundup each Sunday and play-by-play commentary of hockey, football, tennis, soccer and wrestling. He continued wrestling broadcasts after he joined the promotion department of a brewing company in the fall of 1953.

Of the half-dozen ways he's been involved with sports, the toughest and most rewarding, he says, is play-by-play commentary.

"You have the pleasure of reporting to people, as you do in newscasts," he says. "That's something, too—these people are relying on you; shut-ins and people with children to watch. They're also the ones that make commentary rewarding. In play-by-play they depend on you in a different way; you have to make up, so to speak, for the fact that they can't be there."

Whether as CBC sportscaster, commentator or host of the Saturday afternoon Game of the Day on the Trans-Canada network, research is a big and essential job. Apart from keeping up with the sports news generally, he says, the sportscaster-commentator has to know the players, the teams and the fields; he has to know who's in a slump and who's scored how many points or runs. And, whenever possible, Fred attends the work-outs of local teams.

He has always lived in Toronto, where he was born on October 15, 1921. The brown-haired "Scam" was married in May, 1957, to Nan Carroll of Doaktown, N.B. They have an infant daughter, Patricia. Fred spends most of his free time playing golf and squash.

He is seen regularly on Week-end in Sports on CBC-TV. In addition, he is host on Game of the Day on CBC radio during the summer.

TRANS-CANADA MATINEE

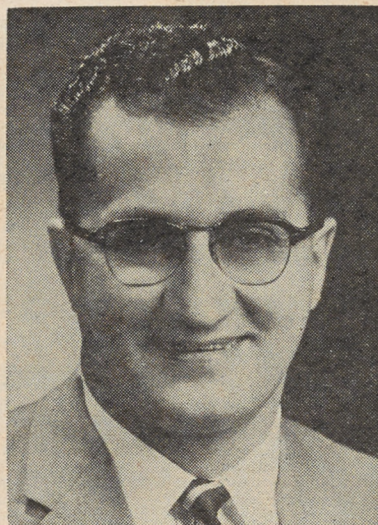

At the United Nations. Kathleen Teltsch is a veteran United Nations correspondent, having reported for the New York Times on the activities of the U.N. since its first beginning at Lake Success. Every Friday, she brings Matinee listeners up-to-date on happenings at the U.N.

Books I've Been Reading. Elizabeth Mascall is a writer, critic, actress and broadcaster in her spare time; her full time occupation is housewife and mother. She's no stranger to Matinee listeners either, having been a regular book-reviewer for some time and also contributing series from time to time. Today, Mrs. Mascall looks at the current crop of books.

Present Day Pioneers. From book reviews to writers is an easy transition and the CBC's morning commentator in Vancouver, Eileen Laurie, makes it with Eric Collier, author of Three Against the Wilderness. Mr. Collier's book is the account of his own adventure in the Meldrum Lake area of British Columbia, 300 miles north of Vancouver. He, his wife Lillian, and their son Veasy, moved into the northern wilds 28 years ago, de-

Johnny Esaw Reports

One of the regular contributors to CBC radio's Saturday sports magazine, Prairie Sports Final, is Johnny Esaw, sports director of radio station CKRC, the CBC's Dominion Network affiliate in Winnipeg. Johnny has been with CKRC for four years; when he came to Winnipeg he had just completed eight years as a sportscaster in Regina. A veteran broadcaster, writer (he does a weekly column for the Winnipeg Free Press) and observer of sports events across Canada, Johnny is heard five times daily on CKRC. He also broadcasts play-by-play descriptions of local hockey, baseball and football games. Johnny and his wife, June, are the proud parents of two children—a four-and-a-half-year-old son, Pat, and a two-month-old daughter, Wendy Ann. Johnny Esaw and other top Canadian sportscasters can be heard Saturdays at 6 p.m. on CBW and 5 p.m. on CBK and CBX on Bob Moir's singers who have not some of them in their repertoire.

On Monday, from Vancouver, we can hear Reger's Serenade for Orchestra. This practically unknown composition has had few performances, although written some sixty years ago. It is a large-scale work, playing as long as the Eroica Symphony and with a slow movement of great beauty and depth. The scoring is extremely unusual in that the strings are divided into two groups and the composer directs that each half should sit at opposite sides of the platform, the half to the conductor's right being muted throughout the work. There is also a harp and a few wind instruments, but no heavy brass. By this unusual disposition of forces Reger achieves some intriguing antiphonal effects.

It is hard to evaluate the exact position of Max Reger in music today. He died at the early age of 43, having written more music than most composers would write in eighty years. It is hard to realize that, had Reger lived, he would still be only in his 80's. I mention this fact because he seems to belong to a musical world long since dead. During his lifetime he was the centre of so much controversy and criticism that people were almost afraid to say that they liked his music for many years after his death. Now I think a change is visible, and the great orchestral Variations on Themes by Mozart and Hiller are beginning to be heard more often, so it is quite possible that a Reger revival may come yet.
